

Monday May 05, 2008

➡ Back to list Developers of applications that reside in the SIM card, or applications that interact with the

SIM, often need to test and validate their applications on different handsets and in real network conditions. In addition, some expert consultancy related to standards and the validation of their applications may not go amiss. As such, Gemalto proposes consultancy services and a dedicated infrastructure in order to offer support during all the phases of development. The Developer Support Offers are proposed by Gemalto to its external developers and partners in order to facilitate and streamline the integration of partners' applications/solutions into Gemalto products.